Abstract

The purpose of this work is to bring the legal status of third-country citizens closer to that of member states, as a different special regime according to the relative agreements concluded for certain categories of foreigners without disregarding the value of some elements of fact, such as residence, family ties, performance of specific economic activities or interests of international politics for respect of these obligations, with the not always uniform content that the union evidently had to entrust to member states a union of intent through "supervision" as well as the interpretation carried out by The Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU) which has strongly reduced state's competences aiming at a European integration still in progress and especially after Brexit.

Keywords: circulation agreements; special regimes; brexit, The Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU); legal status of foreigners; standstill; non-discrimination

The journal Ratio Juris has started an investigation on the subject, however, we have written to the author in order to grant him the right to withdraw or allow his right to defense, but for now we have not received a response from the author. But based on the evidence and indications received, we have activated the meeting of the Ethics and Conflicts of Interest Committee, established in the Code of Good Publication Practices, https://publicaciones.unaula.edu.co/index.php/ratiojuris/_Ethical_guidelines, But clarifying that the text in question was initially reviewed by the TURNITIN without showing similarity to the text indicated to us, in addition to having passed the double-blind peer evaluations, their curriculum was also reviewed, in the ORCID, Reerchgate and other databases that confirmed its existence. For this reason, it was a surprise for the Journal what we were informed, <https://www.pubpeer.com/publications/4247369C6B8A54645D59F98CB9A0F2#>, since our anti-plagiarism systems did not achieve their goal against plagiarism by translation. It is for this reason that the committee decided to download the publication Equal treatment in agreements concluded between European Union and third countries of the journal, in order to respect copyright and place this text in its place with the indications that we have received.

La Revista Ratio Juris ha iniciado una investigación sobre el tema, sin embargo, hemos escrito al autor con el fin de concederle el derecho al retracto o permitir su derecho a la defensa, pero por ahora no hemos recibido respuesta del autor. Pero con fundamento en las pruebas e indicaciones recibidas hemos activado la reunión del comité de Ética y conflictos de interés, establecido en el Código de buenas prácticas de publicación, https://publicaciones.unaula.edu.co/index.php/ratiojuris/pautas_eticas, Pero aclarando que el texto en cuestión fue revisado inicialmente por el TURNITIN sin que arrojara similitud sobre el texto que se nos indica, además de haber pasado las evaluaciones de los pares doble ciego, adicionalmente se revisó su currículum, en el ORCID, Reerchgate y otras bases de datos que confirmaron su existencia. por ello para la Revista fue una sorpresa lo que se nos informó, <https://www.pubpeer.com/publications/4247369C6B8A54645D59F98CB9A0F2#>, ya que nuestros sistemas anti plagio no lograron su cometido frente al plagio por traducción. Es por ello que el comité decidió bajar la publicación Equal treatment in agreements concluded between European Union and third countries de la revista, con el fin de respetar los derechos de autor y colocar el presente texto en su lugar con las indicaciones que hemos recibido.
